

This comment is in regards to the Consumer Bankers Association to weaken Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. This law has been working successfully during the past several years in Indiana. I would urge you not to weaken the law by any means. In today's society, that would only further confusion and hardship on the consumer. As of now, I feel safe answering any phone calls coming into my house. If this law was changed, I would not answer any calls I didn't recognize from the caller ID information and this potentially could result in me not getting important information about a family member or some other critical situation. A lot of thought and planning was put into creating Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law and it is working very effectively as it is now. Please don't diminish this. If you decide otherwise, be sure and send me your home phone number so I can call you every 10 minutes between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. each evening. I may also call you in the middle of the night as my husband sleeps during the day and getting unwanted calls during the day is the same as you getting them during the night while you are sleeping. Please consider this. There are other ways for bankers and others to contact people in Indiana.
